[redacted] 1. On 12 December 1952, the Artillerie Kaserne, northeast of August Bebel Strasse, Frankfurt/Oder, was occupied by about 700 troops wearing red-bordered black epaulets. About 80 percent wore artillery insignia. On 2 December, about 40 troops practiced marching and about 25 troops were lined up in front of a barracks building. On 9 December, about 15 troops were at aiming practice with a 76.2-mm AT gun. Ten 76.2-mm canvas-covered AT guns were nearby. On 10 December, about 30 troops with spades and armed with submachine guns marched into the installation, coming from the direction of Rosengarten-Boesen. [redacted]

2. On 12 December, the Buelow Kaserne at the intersection of Fuerstenwalder Strasse and Post Strasse was occupied by 500 troops wearing red-bordered black epaulets and including 250 with tank insignia. On 3 December, about 50 troops received training in firing and about 60 troops drilled in the barracks yard. Ten 76.2-mm AT guns and ten 57-mm AT guns were also there. About 20 troops with a 57-mm AT gun and 25 troops with spades, the latter coming from the direction of Rosengarten, entered the installation.

3. On 12 December, source learned that the Eichhorn Kaserne on Muellroser Landstrasse was subdivided into three independent sections with separate entrances. The northeast section was occupied by about 100 uniformed women. Sentries observed wore black-bordered crimson epaulets. The southwestern section was occupied by about 500 troops wearing black-bordered crimson epaulets. On 2 December, about 120 troops drilled in the barracks yard and about 30 troops practiced throwing of hand grenades in the close combat training area. On 11 December, 20 troops received training in firing with submachine guns in the Kiesberge (hills) and 25 troops engaged in close combat practice in the barracks yard. [redacted]
